THE ERIE INVESTIGATION.

The Astonishing Story Told by R. Archdall O'Doherty.

How the English Shareholders Obtained Control of the Road-Directors and Officials Bribed to Resign-Senators Receiving $30,000-How the Money Was Distributed.

JAY GOULD ON THE STAND.

His Story of Last Year's Coup d'Etat-Tammany Tactics in the Executive Committee-How "Iago" Lane Worked on Both Sides.

The Erie Investigation Committee appointed by the Assembly held its first session in this city yesterday, at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. The investigation had previously been going on in Albany, but for the purpose of hastening the work and securing the presence of witnesses, most of whom reside here, it was transferred to New York. There were present yesterday Messrs. Babcock, Chairman; Linceln, Wight, Crary and Carpenter. Sergeant-at-Arms Gering was also in attendance.

R. ARCHDALL O'DOHRRTY
Was the first witness called. The following is his testimony:—I have no official connection with the Eric Railroad, and never had; I have some acquaintance with the workings of the company; in the early part of 1872 F. A. Lane saw some of the Erie directors, and arranged with them that they should resign their positions in consideration of receiving some pecuniary considerations; he com-municated with me and asked me if the English shareholders would pay for the control of the Erie road; I telegraphed to McHenry the same night; his replies for some time were in dispute; he finally agreed to pay the amount; in a telegram, dated the 16th of February, he dedesired me to communicate with his agents in New York: I did so, speaking to Mr. Barlow first; I first obtained some pledges from Mr. Barlow that he affair was to be kept secret, that the amount to be paid was not to be reduced, and that he (Mr. Barlow) was to have no share in the profits of the transaction; the amount agreed to be paid was one and a half millions; the next proceeding was made by Mr. Barlow, who wanted the profit divided among four instead of three; I refused to give Mr. Barlow

ANY OF THE PROFIT. pointing out to him that he could make as much ney as he pleased from his knowledge of what was going to occur; he replied that he did not want to speculate in the stock, but he sent a telegram to McHenry, suggesting that it would be weil to advance money to carry out my sugges-tions (the telegram has been already published); the result was that everything was arranged ex-cept the payment of the money; McHenry sent ut a man by the name of Crouch, who was placed at my disposal; not thinking he could be of any use to me I introduced him to Messrs. Day & Barlow, to assist them is the lobbying operations which were being carried on in Albany; having which were being carried on in Albany; having been in the employ of the Erie Railroad before as a sort of newspaper clerk he communicated with the Erie directors and learned Lane's plans, which he

IMPARTED TO GENERAL SIGKLES;
Sickles, nettled at being left out of our plans, made arrangements and set Urouch to fix matters with our directors, so that they could tender their resignations on the same terms obtained by Lane; Sickles then communicated with McHenry and offered to accomplish the same result I has proposed for $200,000; McHenry and his friends lailed to make good their agreement with me; Sickles then saw Lane and told him if he would not consent to accept the smaller amount his services would be altogether dispensed with; Lane was so frightened that he refused to put the amount in one of Barlow's telegrams, who also took part in the breach of faith; Barlow then sent on for the money, and it was forwarded to Sickles, showing that the people on the other side would not trust Barlow; in this exasperated Barlow and me also, and I telegraphed to McHenry:—"Beware; present plans in will result in lose of money;" I had made up my mind to go to Jay Gould in the meaniment of the plant of the plan

Dix, General McClellan and others; after settling our plans, Lane and myself proceeded to the Eric offices; Lane organized the board, and, by the display of extraordinary and courage accomplished the revolution; the directors whom we purchased retired one by one; then Gould was removed from his pesition, General Dix was elected President, W. W. shorman was appeinted Treasurer, S. L. M. Barlow counsel, and orders were given to the officers to recognize no other authority; meantime Gould showed fight, the place was filled with rowdies and policemen, and for a day or two everything was in confusion; en the second day General Sickles appeared on the second day General Sickles and policemen, and for a day or two everything being peaceably settled; Geuld's consideration for doing this was, no doubt, an agreement which Sickles signed releasing Gould from all claims against him by Erie; the existence of any such arrangement was strenuously denied, but I have read the letter from General Sickles in which the agreement was alluded to; Lane, learing that the plot would fail, told Jay Gould of the whole plan, so that Gould was as well informed as ourselves when we walked in en the morning of the lith; Gould relied on an English banker

RESENCE OF MIND

CALLING HIMSELF LORD GORDON.

Who deceived not only Gould, but Horace Greeley, Tom Scott and Horace Clark; he claimed to control a majority of Erie stock, and asserted that he controlled Sickles; soon after that I went to England, having rejected an offer made by Barlow by theck $67,500 to Lane's agent; Henry Thompson got $67,500; Archer got $40,000, Hilton $25,000, Otis, the Secretary, $25,000; White, Assistant Treasurer, $25,000; Archer got $40,000, Hilton $25,000, Otis, the Secretary, $25,000; White, Assistant Treasurer, $25,000; Simmons, a director, got, I think, $60,000; Ramsdell and Sisson got nothing to resign; Ramsdell idd not resign; he is still a director; that was all the amount that was at first used to effect a change, though I heard that a larger amount was al seeds Bischoffsheim has paid to the company something over $4,000,000, leaving a large balance, which, I believe,

The Erik Rallboad Company will Never Beckivs, as the London bankers will doubtless repay themselves for their former outlay; the loan was issued under a centract made on the 8th of May, 1872; the contract is binding on the Eric Railway until the year 1920; the mertgage under which these bonds were issued was for a total sum or $30,000,000 in gold; but $23,000,000 of this was required to replace mortgages aiready in existence; the amount realized by Bischoffsheim & Goldschmid was about $900,000 in gold on the sale of the bonds; in addition they have got one per cent half yearly on the interest; General Dix was Fresident of the road at the time the contract was made; I published in the Times an Eric voucher, showing that Themas Barlow had drawn $50,000, apparently to pay General Sickles for services rendered by him. (The voucher was here produced.) On the back of the voucher you will see that the amount is charged to the transportation account, as if the amount was for fuel and oil; the amount of Sickles' hotel bills paid by the Eric Railway was $35,000; a lew days alter Barlow drew the $50,000; he drew an additional $10,000 for lawyers' fees; United States Marshal Sharpe received over $1,000 for services to be rendered; Sharpe got an order from the Treasury Department in Washington to seize the books of the Eric Railroad, but Secretary Boutwell rescinded the order before it was carried into effect; McHenry told me be had given Sickles a large sum to secure the passage of the bill at Albany; I have no personal knowledge of how it was used, but I know that $50,000 was used in March, immediately after the coup d'êtat; Archer, the Vice President of the Eric Railroad Company, was then in Albany, and he anthorized the payment of $5,000 each to six Senators; I heard W. H. Vanderbit disbursed the money personally; Barlow pocketed the Insult he first received by the money being sent to Sickles, because he bel inte the position he now occupies, the customary commission for executing the bonds of the description I have named in England is about a half per cent; the day after Gould's overthrow Barlow drew two bills on McHenry for $50,000 in favor of Gardner and myself; it's a pity that Mr. Barlow and Mr. Watson can't give their evidence until they hear what other people say of them; under the arrangement made by McHenry and me the directors were to be more liberally rewarded for resigning than they afterwards were; it was not necessary to expend any money for the repeal of the Classification act; I have no personal knowledge of money being expended in Aloany; I never saw the original of the copies of the vouchers which I have given you.

After Recess.

The committee reassembled at four o'clock and

The committee reassembled at four o'clock and called Jay Gould to the stand. The examination was conduced by Mr. Whitney, who was evidently too young to worm very much out of the wily expended to young to worm very much out of the wily expended to young to worm very much out of the wily expended to young to work very much out of the wasted to tell in a machadam manner, meanwhile quietly studying the calibre of his examiners and wearing throughout a peculiar, sardoured as meeting of the Executive Committee just previous to the Coup a care of March, 1872. His word is the coup a care of the coup a care of the light of the coup and the light of t ing adjourned, got up and went out; I don't know who made the motion to adjourn; I thought leard it, so I put it and declared it carried. (This explanation was given in such inimitable style as to cause the state members of the committee to largh about; and the state of the committee it is an initially by half closing his left eye with the aforesaid stick and taking a bead through his eyelashes and over the stick head at the members of the committee and the young man who acted as connsel.) The next step was a call for a meeting signed by Mr. Archer, which was ne call at all, as it should have been made by the Prosident at the request of a certain number of directors;

JAY GOILD'S PLAN.

My theory was that, as the meeting was informal, the most they could do was come together and resum; everything they undertook to do in filling everything they undertook to do in filling would be those of the conspirators, so that the only legal directors left would be my own friends and those who did not attend; the only legal directors would be Messra. Ganson, Sherwood, Drake, Dr. Eldridge, Archer, Ramsdell and myself; I knew the meeting was to be called the evening before, or rather Saturday evening, the 9th; on Monday, the lith, I called a meeting for Tuesday, the 12th, of those gentlemen I have named; at that meeting we should have filled up the vacanctes caused by the resignations of the day before; the meeting would be of my friends, for I had control as perfectly as ever; when we held one side of the building by force and they the other Dr. Eldridge came of those gentlemen I have named; at that meeting would be of my friends, for I had control as perfectly as ever; when we held one side of the building by force and they the other Dr. Eldridge came of the substance was that everything that had been done to my terms; the memoranam containing the terms was partly in my handwriting, partly in Mr. Sherwood's, and, I think, some in Sickles', General Sickles took it; I never saw it since; he said he had placed it among the arch

SHIPWEECKS.

Additional Particulars in Regard to the Accident to the Niagara and the Loss of the Petersburgh—The Petersburgh a Complete Wreck. The latest advices from Bermuda give some additional particulars about the accident to the steamship Niagara, Captain Stark, which left Bermuda March 1, bound for New York. The weather was favorable until the afternoon of the following day (Sunday), when she encountered heavy gales, continually increasing in fury. The barometer fell to 29 2-10, and the passengers soon experienced a most terrible hurricane. On Tuesday, March 4, the main steampipe gave way, completely disabiling the ship. The drag was immediately got out to bring the ship head to sea. This was accomplished, and efforts were made to repair the pipe. These efforts were partially successful, but the gales still continuing Captain Stark decided to return to Bermuda—only eighteen miles had been made in the last twelve hours. The Niagara arrived at St. George, Bermuda, March & She had just under-gone a very thorough inspection by the Colonial government of Bermuda and had been accepted to carry the mails.

The dimensions of the Niagara have been given at length in the HERALD. She was owned by the

The dimensions of the Ningara have been given at length in the Herald. She was owned by the Old Dominion Steamship Company, and this was her first trip to New York. Her cargo was Bermuda produce. The damage sustained will not amount to more than $5,000. The following testimonial to Captain Stark has been published in the Bermuda papers:

Strambnip Niagara, March 6, 1873.

Cartan Stark, Stramship Niagara, March 6, 1873.

Cartan Stark, Stramship Niagara, under your command on her late trip from Bermuda to New York, desire on their return to Bermuda thaving been forced by stress of weather to return to said port) to convey to yourself, your officers and crew our heartlet thanks for the many acts of kindness received at their hands during the trying period of the last few days.

Without wishing to make any distinction we cannot refrain from mentioning the noble and heroic conduct and untiring exertions (during your own painful illness, and when the ship was in a most perious condition, disabled in machinery during a heavy gale) of Mr. Gildersleeve, chief engineer, and Mr. Kelly, first ofneer, to whom, under the blessings of Providence, the safety of the Niagars and also in board are due.

With Gir best wishes tor your future success and happiness, and the same to your future success and happiness, and the providence of the Niagars and also in board are due.

THOS, J. OUTERBRIDGE, Pitty-seventh regiment. The steamship Petersburgh, of Leith, Scotland, is a complete wreek. The account published in the Herald of Teesday last has been corroborated by the latest advices. The value of the cargo of tea, the greater part of which was insured in New York, is now stated at $700,000. She had as passengers the captain and crew of the wreeked slip Charlotte, Captain Austin. The Petersburgh grounded outside St. George, but 12,000 packages were landed dry, and are now stored at St. George; 5,000 of the packages that were saved were wet.
